Marquis Dufferin Says Ulster Follows Motto: "What We Have We Hold"

What May Break Up the Conference On Armaments

LONDON.—One danger to a final and satisfactory agreement at the approaching Washington conference lies in the present conflict of British and United States interests in oil questions, says a lengthy article in the London Times.

"It may fairly be advanced," says the article, "if Great Britain is not prepared to make concessions on this vital question the conference is likely to break down."

British Tribute To Mothers of Unknown American Dead

WASHINGTON.—As a mother who has wept over the loss of three of her own gallant sons in the great war for liberty and civilization and on behalf of all the mothers of the British Empire who gave their beloved sons to the cause, I bring to the hater of your Unknown Soldier, our tribute of love and of tears.

The sweet-faced woman who said this was Mrs. Jane McCudden, the Englishwoman selected by the Pilgrim Fathers' Association to come to America to lay a wreath of flowers on the grave of America's Unknown Soldier, Nov. 11, at Arlington cemetery.

Her husband, who was accidentally killed last year, saw 30 years' service in the British army. Before he was 17, Queen Victoria had decorated him with the Khedive Star, the Egyptian medal and the Royal Humane Society medal.

They had three sons all killed in the war. One of the boys served 10 years in the army. During the late war he won the Mons Star and bar. He was one of the first air pilots in France and was killed in May, 1915. Another son, a second lieutenant in the Royal Air Service, before he was killed won the Military cross by bringing down 11 enemy airplanes. A third son, Major James McCudden also in the air force, before his death in 1918 had brought down 57 enemy machines and had won every possible British military decoration, including the rare Victoria Cross. The French had given him the Croix de Guerre and he had gotten a diploma from the American Aero Club.

NO PERMANENT PEACE

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—The only way to prevent war is to so prepare for defence that other nations will not want to fight, said General MacBrien, chief of the Canadian general staff, addressing the Canadian Club here. Six distinct wars were now raging he said and difficulties brewing between other nations precluded the idea of permanent peace.

"Duty called them. I consider my mission to America as a sacred duty also. It will be as if all the bereaved mothers of the British Empire were taking the hands of the bereaved mothers of America, pressing them, and whispering words of consolation and of love."

MOTHER! OPEN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

CHAPTER XIX

A Suspicious Scene

It was brilliantly lighted, and looked indeed like a fairy scene, with its flowers and flags and its myriad of varicolored lamps. But he could not see the person for a sight of whom his heart ached. Then he entered, and looking round with scarcely concealed eagerness, saw her—saw her dancing with Guildford Berton! She was smiling at something he was saying, and her loveliness, heightened by her simple ball dress, bewitched and overwhelmed him. To the lover the beauty of his mistress is always a sacred mystery and subject for wonderment.

Hitherto he had only her in ordinary walking attire; to-night she scolded until after supper, and so was arrayed for conquest; a queen in splendor, though her dress was simple, only a simple one—her arms gleaming like ivory, her red-brown hair shining like burnished gold, her standing looking on with glittering beautiful eyes glowing with the reflected many-colored lights, her lips half-parted with a smile.

He gazed at her open-eyed, drinking in her loveliness, falling down before it, mentally, and worshipping it. Could it be possible that this lovely creature had condescended to love him, to tell him so, to promise to be his wife?

Then all in a moment a chill struck him. She was dancing with another man, his arm was round her waist, her hand was resting on his shoulder. And that man was—Guildford Berton!

And he had come all this way to see this!

Love is unreasonable, illogical. It never occurred to him that, being there, Norah could scarcely refuse to dance because her lover—who had left her for nearly a fortnight without a word of explanation—was absent! He did not think of that, but stood still, and suddenly grew cold—not hot—with unconscious jealousy.

At that moment Lady Ferndale saw him, and went up to him.

"Mr. Burne," she said; "and at last! How unkind of you to keep away from us all day!"

"It is my fate that is unkind, Lady Ferndale," he said. "I assure you—"

"Never mind. I shall keep my mind until after supper, and so give you time to invent some pretty in splendor, though her dress was simple, only a simple one—her arms gleaming like ivory, her red-brown hair shining like burnished gold, her standing looking on with glittering eyes, her small foot softly tapping the floor impatiently, and her lady ship, thinking "At any rate, I have found a handsome partner for him," went toward her.

"There is a young lady—that pretty one with the black hair. Will you dance with her?"

"I will dance with any one you are good enough to choose for me," said Cyril, and he went up to Becca, casting a longing, wistful thought, if not a wistful glance toward Norah.

Becca blushed becomingly, and her dark face grew radiant. She had thrown over her last partner, whose clumsy movements had threatened the destruction of her frock, and had been dying to dance. And now Mr. Burne, a real gentleman—though an artist—had chosen her.

Becca could dance—Santleigh and Ferndale girls took to it naturally, just as the children of the Pacific Islands take to swimming—and, to her delight, Mr. Burne was simply a perfect waltzer. Blushing with pleasure and pride she went two or three times round the room with him, then the smile on her parted lips and in her glittering eyes died away and she stopped.

"What is the matter?" asked Cyril, awaking from a moody abstraction. "Anything wrong? Haven't I got your step Becca?"

"Oh, you dance beautifully, beautifully, Mr. Burne," said Becca. "But I want to pick up my dress."

But it was not to arrange her train that she had stopped. When she had started for the ball that evening Becca was perfectly satisfied with her dress but deplored the fact of one thing being lacking—she had no jewelry. All the ladies would, she thought, be smothered in diamonds, and most of the village girls would have brooches or bracelets or earrings, and she had nothing, not even a—

Then, suddenly there flashed upon her the remembrance of the ring she had "found" beside Cyril's watch.

Now, a man, if he had stolen it, would never have dreamed of wearing it in public. Only a woman—and only a woman of Becca's type—would have had the courage and audacity of even entertaining the thought.

She looked at it, put it on, held up her hand before the glass, and—went to the ball in it!

She had it on when Cyril entered, and had meant to take it off, but when he approached her and asked her to dance she forgot the ring in her flurry and flutter of pride and gratification, and only remembered it after the third turn.

She stooped down, found the arrangement of the train so difficult that it required both hands, and managed to take off the ring and slip it into her pocket.

"I'm all right now, sir," she said, looking up at him with angelic innocence in her black eyes, and they resumed their dancing.

Poor Cyril danced like a machine, in perfect time and harmony, but neither his heart nor his brain was in it, and all his soul was intent upon his beautiful sweetheart.

He watched her, sometimes directly, sometimes over his shoulder, and he saw her walk off on Guildford Berton's arm. They disappeared for a time, and then when he saw them next the dark-faced, self-possessed Berton was still her companion.

Cyril wondered whether they had been dancing together before whether they had "spent the evening" in each other's company, and his heart ached and burned as he tried to talk to Becca, who was really dancing beautifully, and deserved on that account a little attention.

"Great many people here? Yes Becca. I hope you are enjoying yourself. Where have I been? Well, that's a long story. So you have missed me, have you? I wonder," almost to himself, "whether any one else has?"

"Lor, yes, sir. Mrs. Brown says The Chequers isn't the same without you."

"Oh, Mrs. Brown," remarked Cyril disconsolately. "Has—has Lady Norah been well, Becca?"

Becca shot a mischievous glance at

The Foundation of Health is Habit

"For every man who has lost his life by what he did in the last five minutes a hundred men have died because of what they had been doing in the last five years."

Life is made up of habits. There is the health habit. And also the habit of ill-health. It is surprising what a lot of people have developed the latter.

What hosts of women have bilious spells and bilious headaches about every so often, year in and year out, and never think of correcting the action of the liver, and thereby removing the cause of this oft-recurring trouble.

They have formed the habit of being bilious.

Many are the men, indoor workers as well as those who spend their time in the open, who frequently suffer from backache, and yet neglect to get the kidneys in healthful condition.

It is the backache habit which is robbing life of its pleasures for them.

These are dangerous habits.

Some people live for many years with their systems poisoned by impurities—they live and suffer.

Others soon develop Bright's disease, diabetes, high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries, and quickly have their lives snuffed out.

The greatest rule of health is "daily movement of the bowels."

This is also the most valuable of health habits.

To get back to this rule, to awaken the sluggish action of the liver and kidneys, to cleanse the system and purify the blood, there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

By using one pill a dose at bedtime two or three times a week, just as often as is necessary to keep the bowels regular, you will in a few weeks restore the healthful action of these filtering and excretory organs

Bilious Headache

Mrs. John Ireland, R. R. No. 2, King, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from severe headaches and bilious spells. I tried a number of remedies without obtaining any benefit until I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. These completely relieved me, and made me feel like a new person. I am very grateful to Dr. Chase's medicines for what they have done for me, and you may use my letter for the benefit of others."

Rheumatism

Mr. George Weathers, Huntsville, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with rheumatism for eighteen years, and although I tried a number of different treatments nothing did me any good. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and can truthfully say they completely relieved me."

and correct any derangement of the digestive system.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you as nothing else can to get back to the habit of healthful living.

You will live a longer and a happier life by reason of their use.

These letters will interest you, and a test of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will prove their exceptional merits in relieving the common, every-day ills and preventing the more serious ones. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Kidney Trouble

Mr. George Stevenson, Rounthwaite, Man., writes:

"For seven months I suffered from Kidney trouble, backache and dizzy turns, and could get no relief. My back ached so severely that I could not turn in bed, and finally I had to quit work. One day I received a copy of Dr. Chase's Almanac through the mail, and after reading how highly Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were recommended, I gave them a trial. I had tried various other pills and remedies with no effect whatever, but immediately I started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I got relief, and two boxes made me well."

him from her black eyes.

"Lor, yes; and so gay! I never see a young lady so happy and light-hearted. She's singing and laughing all day. And she's been out so much lately. All the grand folk make so much of her, they do."

Cyril stifled a groan. Singing and laughing all day! And he had spent a fortnight of mental torture. And now he came back to find her dancing with Guildford Berton, who seemed to be her shadow!

He looked at that gentleman as he bent over the chair in which North was seated, and for the first time Cyril realized how handsome a man Guildford Berton was. Perhaps he had been paying her attentions all the time he, Cyril, had been away?

He had probably seen her every day at the Court, had walked and ridden with her, had spent hours in her society whispering to her, as he was whispering now. And she had been light-hearted and gay! Had she forgotten him? he asked himself. She had not looked his way yet. Surely she must know that he was in the room, and could have given him one look of recognition, of welcome.

patience; he had rushed down from London without his dinner, and was tired and overstrained, and the merry demons who delight in tormenting mankind had got firm hold of him, and were enjoying themselves amazingly.

And still he danced without a mis- take steering Becca through the crowd as he would have steered a duchess, and thinking as little of her as if she were a lay figure.

They attracted some attention.

Becca was slim and pretty, and the delicious exercises, combined with her pride in being the partner of the handsomest man in the room, had set her eyes dancing and given a warm flush to her dark face; and the spectators were looking on admiringly and curiously.

"Who is that gentleman dancing with that pretty girl with the black hair?" asked a dowager sitting just behind Norah.

"Oh, he"—replied the gentleman she addressed, who had got Cyril's name from Lady Ferndale, but knew no more and yet anxious to appear well informed and gratify the dowager's curiosity—"oh, that is Mr. Cyril Burne, a rising artist; quite a clever young fellow. And he is dancing with the girl he is engaged to. Quite a love affair of the old romantic kind, I assume your ladyship."

"In-deed," responded the dowager. "Well, they are well matched. I'm sure. What nice hair the girl has! And he is—yes, really he is, very handsome."

Norah heard this, and her face flushed for a second, and her heart ached. How could he whirl round with that vain and giddy girl while she sat there waiting for him? Had he not waited for a whole fortnight? Why did he not come to her and, making any excuse he liked, take her away from the hateful man who persisted in following her like a shadow and mourning in her ear?

"Oh, that game of cross-purposes! The music ceased at last and Cyril, driven desperate, took Becca to a seat, and it is to be feared, left her rather cavalierly.

"You must give me another dance, Becca," he said not meaning it in the slightest, scarcely indeed knowing what he said; and resolved to go straight to Norah, he began to thread his way through the now confused and entangling throng.

POSSIBILITIES OF A GENERAL ELECTION FOR GT. BRITAIN
LONDON, Nov. 11.—The possibility of general election is engaging attention, and an article in the Yorkshire Post, urging that Unionists by all past pledges are bound to support Ulster, but others doubt whether he is politically or physically able to lead a conservative secession against the whole break with Lloyd George are in train.

ST. JOHN'S NEWFOUNDLAND, SATURDAY, NOV. 12th., 1921.

F.P.U. Convention

We cannot say at this writing whether the Convention will open as expected on the 23rd. If it is held over until the "Prospero" returns on her next trip it may be a few days later, but in any case, we shall be able in a few days to inform the delegates further on the matter.

A great deal of interest will be manifested in the gathering this year, as this critical period in our history serves to bring the fishermen closer together than ever. They realize that in times of adversity it is by cooperation that a solution of difficulties is to be found. And in this Parliament of Fishermen we have the soul of the country speaking, for at present there is not the slightest doubt that the Fisherman as a producer is the basis of our wealth. Let the fishermen stop catching fish and our whole financial fabric comes tumbling down about our ears. Let the fishermen get a poor price for fish and from the smallest shop in a back street to the biggest warehouse, the result is felt. It is economically impossible for us to continue unless the Fishing Industry is nurtured and cared for. It is to this end that the yearly Conventions of the Fishermen's Protective Union tend, and it is because Hon. W. F. Coaker has been their successful leader that the fishermen turn to him in every problem that faces them.

Mr. Coaker is not infallible or all-powerful that he can take the whole burden of this cause upon his shoulders and find remedy and help for every individual toiler who needs it. Unreasonable critics in their petty jealousy call upon him to do this and that, knowing in their hearts that it is impossible.

The fishermen know today that whereas before the F. P. U. came, their cause was ignored, for the past twelve years they have had champions who have taken off their coats to work in their interest. The fishermen have cooperated and it has been good. They emerged out of the Slough of Despond in 1908 and marched onward to Prosperity. The aftermath of war is testing the world now and it is showing Newfoundland producers as well as the toilers of all countries that the only sane system of marketing any commodity must begin at a fair return to the producer. When the smash was coming a year or so ago, Mr. Coaker tried his level best to make it fall as lightly as possible upon the fishermen. He succeeded until political parasites and trade jealousy made his further efforts useless. The result of the cancellation of the Regulations has meant chaos and suffering for our fishermen and thus for every business interest in the country. The problem of this reconstruction period will probably be given great prominence at the coming Convention, and we are very much mistaken if the delegates do not register a big protest against the system under which consignment of our fish is robbing the country of millions of dollars, and recommend that the export problem of our fishery products receive the biggest share of attention from exporters, fishermen and all interested.

He Was Tired Of Tea

The buyer of a leading wholesale grocery house in Nova Scotia had been snowed under with tea samples all his business life. All the glamor of tea had gone from him to try Blue Bird left him unmoved till a week ago. Then he tried Blue Bird Standard Label and said it was the finest tea known in Nova Scotia, at any price, and bought 5 lbs. for his home.

PRIME MINISTER AT L. O. A. FUNCTION ARMISTICE NIGHT

Last evening the ladies of the Loyal Orange Benevolent Association held a meeting in the Victoria Hall in commemoration of Armistice Day. The meeting was chiefly a gathering in support of the Disarmament Conference in Washington. Victoria Hall was filled, admission being by ticket for which forty cents was charged.

The program of the evening consisted of suitable songs and recitations, introductory remarks by Grand Master Cave, who, being in attendance, was asked to take the chair, and an address by the Prime Minister. The evening closed with tea being served.

Grand Master Cave congratulated the ladies upon their enterprise in having organized the Armistice Night function. The Prime Minister dealt with a number of topics specially appertaining to Armistice Day, the Armistice itself, the unveiling of the Cenotaph and the burial of the unknown warrior in England a year ago, the quiet function around the Sergeant's Cross in St. John's during the forenoon, the representation of Newfoundland by Captain Robertson and Lieutenants Field and Herder at Washington in their tribute to the American Unknown Warrior on the tenth, and the Disarmament Conference at Washington. Premier Squires stated that if the world could not now settle down from the war and the turmoil following the war and pay its debts in peace, then the world was not a place in which it was worth anybody's while to live. The upheaval of to-day in labor and other circles was mainly the result of the war. Not only had the warring countries lost a large proportion of their best blood in the battle, but a large proportion of those who returned were, because of the turmoil of war entering into their lives at the formative period of their characters, unfitted for a ready and frictionless absorption into peace industries. A man who was accustomed to be a hero in the battle field found it infinitely hard to be a hero on the Badger Road, on the railway, in the office, or behind the counter. While it was easy for the wages of labor to soar, and the product of labor to consequently soar, the process of wages and the article falling was much more difficult. Sir Richard Squires dealt with the necessity for Newfoundlanders to forget the fact that they were living in a little island by themselves and that the rest of the world did not matter. The Premier thought it would be a very great deal better if Newfoundlanders woke up to the fact that what appeared in the foreign press concerning Newfoundland was important to Newfoundland, that even though we were an island off by ourselves it was much better for the man who lived in New York or London to be told by his morning paper that this was a decent sort of a country and one well worth living in and visiting and giving credit to than it was for him to be told by his morning paper that we were faced with starvation. He stated that he disagreed with the opinion of those who thought that Newfoundlanders were super-sensitive about the reputation of their own land abroad, that he would like to see more sensitiveness as to the reputation of the country; that it was just as important for Newfoundland to see that it got just treatment in the foreign press as it was for the British Army to see that the reports of Britain's activities during the war were not misrepresented in the press. The burden of the Premier's closing remarks was to the effect that it was essential that the world should get back to the elementary principles of good will and decency enunciated by the Christ and all the other great religious leaders, Buddha, Confucius and the rest. Just so long as a man expected to get more for his goods, whether that goods be the result of his muscle or his brain, whether that goods be his own time or the time of his machinery, than the product was worth, so long would there be business turmoil. The man who put in an eight hour day, charging for eight hours and giving five hours of value, was just as dishonest as the flour merchant who sold a barrel of flour considerably under weight. The chaos of the world and its labor conditions could, in the opinion of the Prime Minister, only be cured by getting back to the fundamental principles of playing the game as honest, decent, co-operating citizens of a community.

A Hundred Years From Now

Place Water Street
Time A. D. 2021.

Water Street is a street of skyscrapers—but still the main shopping centre in St. John's.

Above, aeroplanes flit about as numerous as cabs and taxis; most of them land on the roof of the "Big Store."

Two men have just landed and are walking away from the hangars, leaving their 'planes in charge of mechanics. They see each other.

A. "Hullo, old man! What are you doing here?"
B. "Oh! just slipped over from Trinity for a hair-cut. It took me ten minutes—I really must buy a new 'bus. My old Pegasus was pretty good in her day, but she's getting a bit long in the tooth. What are you up to?"

A. "Just got a wire from my girl. 'Meet me at the Royal Stores'—and here I am. Let's make a move downstairs. Mabel ought to be there by now."

They move downstairs and stroll in to a spacious hall furnished with soft couches and easy chairs. In the centre of the room, occupying a place of honor, is a large glass case, around which quite a crowd of people is collected. Inside the case are a dozen or so of seven column advertisements—(similar to those appearing now)—a little faded and dull.

B. "Hullo! what's the crowd about?"

A. "Don't you know? Why, these advertisements are considered by the people here to be the most priceless relics in the whole of the Store. It's really wonderful to think that while so many things have changed the principle proclaimed by these old advertisements—now more than a century old—should still survive. This building and the original Royal Stores have very few points of resemblance; fashions have altered a dozen times, the staff must have changed many times during the century, but principles and policies never change. If you look at those advs. you will find that every one of them deal with some business principle. Here is one for instance, Courtesy—The staff are the most obliging people you can find anywhere. Here's another one—'Satisfaction'—for over a hundred years these people have guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or return the money. Hullo! there's Mabel! Good bye old man. I'll run over to see you some evening, and will have another bit of chatter together."

The First Five Hundred, by Richard Cramm (C. F. Williams, M.C.) is a volume which should certainly be in the hands of all 'who went across and came back' and of the relations of those who sleep in Flanders' Field.

The book is admirably bound and the printing of the text excellent, but only one thing could be wished for: that the author could have arranged for its printing in the British Empire, but doubtless there are reasons that made this impossible. Throughout the volume appears the ubiquitous crest and the words the "Royal Newfoundland Regiment."

Now as to the text and illustrations. Part I. is a brief sketch of the military operations of "Ours." There are also some excellent maps reprinted by permission of the "Literary Digest," as well as numerous groups. At the end of this part are some ex-

Catholic Cadet Corps

Bell Island Cadets Have Record Week

The big rally of the Catholic Cadet Corps of Bell Island "C" Wabana Co. has already borne good fruit and last week over 200 Cadets reported for duty—the biggest number in the history of the Company—and we doubt if ever exceeded by any outpost brigade.

On Monday the senior company assembled at the Armoury numbering fifty and were put through manoeuvres by 2nd Lieut. A. Connors assisted by 2nd Lieut. John Gunn. Major J. M. Greene commanding "C" Co. inspected the seniors and took over the parade.

On Wednesday the Brass Band had their first practice under the competent instruction of Mr. A. S. Murray and if their enthusiasm is any indication of their future success, then good results are sure to follow. Over 21 offered for the Band, including several ex-members of the corps who re-joined.

On Thursday the Drum and Bugle Band, numbering seventeen, were given practice and instruction under Sergt. Instructor John Mansfield. 2nd Lieut. Patrick Murphy and Jas. L. Connors were on duty in connection with the preparatory arrangements of the bands.

On Thursday also Major J. M. Greene, accompanied by 2nd Lieut. John Gunn and 2nd Lieut. F. F. Jardine, J.P., proceeded to Lance Cove where the Lance Cove platoon under 2nd Lieut. P. Stoyles numbering 27 nearly a full complement, were inducted and put through several exercises.

On Friday Captain John J. Murphy had his hands full with the Junior Company lads under seventeen, 85 of whom paraded but Capt. Murphy, ably assisted by 2nd Lieut. Thos. Neary and C.S.M. Thos. Fitzpatrick, were able to handle the situation. Lieut. James L. Connors, 2nd Lieut. P. Murphy, J. Gunn and F. F. Jardine, J.P., together with the Major were on parade also on Friday night.

On Saturday a Fatigue Squad under Sergts. Michael Dobbin, John Hunt and Thos. Joy were busily engaged at the Armoury and did yeoman service. On Saturday night the Band again practiced, full strength turning up and putting in nearly three hours' practice.

The Officers' Mess held a meeting in the Officers' Rooms Saturday night, Major Greene presiding and the following being present: Capt. J. J. Murphy, Lieut. J. L. Connors, 2nd Lieut. A. Connors, J. Gunn, T. Neary and P. T. Murphy. Much business was discussed and it was decided to hold a card tournament on Saturday, the 12th, a big dance in the Star Hall on Nov. 23rd, and the Annual Re-union of the Brigade members on the 25th inst., while it was decided to form a Ladies' Auxiliary on the 13th, and the Athletic Association to meet on the 30th.

Fifty new rifles were ordered from Headquarters and it was decided to increase the number of drummers and buglers.

Appointments and Promotions.
The following promotions and appointments have been posted in Battalion Orders by Major O'Grady, M.B.E., Actg. Officer Commanding Catholic Cadet Corps affecting "C" Wabana Co. Bell Island, and dating from Nov. 3rd, 1921:—

Promotions, "C" Wabana Co.—Capt. J. M. Greene to be Acting Major; Lieut. John Murphy to be Acting Captain; Acting Lieut. Jas. L. Connors to be Lieutenant on resumption of regular duties.

Commissions.—The following gentlemen have been given Commissions as 2nd Lieutenants from this date, and are attached to "C" Wabana Co.:—Mr. Augustus Connors, Mr. Thomas Neary, Mr. Patrick T. Murphy, Mr. Patrick Stoyles, Mr. F. F. Jardine, J.P., Mr. John Gunn.

These gentlemen have taken up active duty attached to their Companies. Lieut. Connors and Gunn being attached to the Senior; Capt. John Murphy and Lieut. Neary being attached to the Junior Company (numbering over 100 Junior lads); Lieut. Stoyles being in charge of Lance Cove platoon; Lieut. P. T. Murphy being in charge of recruiting and drums and bugles; Lieut. F. F. Jardine being attached to the orderly room and Lieut. Jas. L. Connors assisting Major Greene in general supervision. Altogether over 250 are on the roll of "C" Wabana Co. and last week the attendance showed a roll call of over 200, all ranks reporting.

WASHINGTON DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

By J. R. SMALLWOOD.

Oh, peace! thou source and soul of social life;
Beneath whose calm, inspiring influence
Science his view enlarges, Art refines,
And swelling Commerce opens
all her ports;
Blest be the man divine who gives us thee!

—Thomson.

August Fourth, Nineteen Fourteen, was a day pregnant with the most direful and terrible events in the world's long history. And yet few people at that time realized it, or even dreamed it. The knowledge of the people of what was to follow was so meagre as to make the slightest imagination of it impossible. It took four or five years of bitter experience to drive home to the dulllest intelligence what, on that day in August, 1917, some had imagination enough to foresee.

Today is November Twelve, Nineteen Twenty One.

This day contains potentialities which the world, in exactly the same way as in 1914, does not dream of. It is, perhaps, the most momentous day in the world's history. The life or death of many millions of the race—even the race itself—can be decided from events which on this day will begin to unfold themselves. Today and the days that follow may decide the fate of civilization. Today and the days that follow decide whether this earth is to continue the march onward, or is to crash and fall farther back than the time when Christ surveyed its confines.

Today, in the City of Washington, United States, there meet the appointed delegates of all but two of the great nations. It is the first meeting of a conference which may last several weeks. The conference was called some months ago by President Warren Gamaliel Harding of America, and the subject for discussion and solution, is Limitation of Armaments and the Pacific Question. In this country little interest—indeed, no interest—has been displayed toward the conference. Little information has been put before the country. That is why there has been no interest. And yet Newfoundland, in common with the world, will share in the results of this conference.

In other parts of the world more interest than here is shown in the matter. In Great Britain, for instance, the bulk of the people are studying and discussing it. Parliament is dealing with it daily. It is one of the live questions of the day. So in France. So in Italy. In America it is the same. Not that the peoples mentioned are keenly interested. They are not—most of them. They do not know enough about it to be able to take such an interest in it. And yet the most consequential decisions since 1914 may be made at this conference this month.

All that we mean by civilization and culture is hanging by these decisions. We have just ended one vast war whose enormity has never been equalled or approached, and as a direct result somewhere between fifteen and seventeen millions lie rotting on the battlefields of Europe.

And now perhaps we face another war beside which that which has gone will be a corner-fight.

Is it not, then, pertinent to institute some brief enquiries into the subject matter of this conference?

Every "Diamond Dyes" package tells how to dye or tint any worn, faded garment or drapery a new rich color, that will not streak, spot, fade or run. Perfect home dyeing is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes even if you have never dyed before. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. For fifty-one years millions of women have been using "Diamond Dyes" to add years of wear to their old, shabby waists, skirts, dresses, coats, sweaters, stockings, drapings, hangings, everything!

GIRLS! GROW THICK LONG, HEAVY HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Buy a 35-cent bottle of "Danderine." One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and in a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. This delightful, stimulating tonic helps thin, lifeless, faded hair to grow long, thick, heavy and luxuriant.

THE BERNSTEIN CHEQUE CASE

The hearing of the case of Joseph Bernstein versus the Canadian Bank of Commerce was continued before Mr. Justice Johnson in the Supreme Court this morning when Miss Rose, who had worked at Bernstein's as a tailress and did occasional office work while there, took the stand. She testified that she had often seen Mr. Bernstein making out cheques. She said the writing in the body of the cheque in question was unlike any she had previously seen but that the signature was something like that of Mr. Bernstein. This was all the light she could throw on the matter. The plaintiff recalled said that the cheque was not given by him in payment of losses at cards or in payment of a debt.

The case both for the plaintiff and the defendant is closed but Judge Johnson postponed the further hearing till next Wednesday as he is desirous of getting the evidence of another girl who worked at Bernstein's.

Veterans To Get Increase In Pensions

Canadian Scale to be Adopted In 1922.
Premier Has Employment Policy For Vets.

That the soldiers would shortly be given the drop balance left over from June 30th last as an augmentation to their present pensions, and that on Jan. 1st, 1922, the Canadian Scale of Pensions would be adopted here, were two of the guarantees given to the G. W. V. A. by the Prime Minister, Hon. Sir R. A. Squires, in a conference between the Executive of the Association and the Executive Government yesterday afternoon. The Prime Minister intimated also that he had under consideration a policy of employment for the returned veterans of the whole country.

The conference lasted for one hour and a half, President Higgins placing the claims of the Veterans before the Government, and reading resolutions sent in from all parts of the country supporting the Association in their demands. After the discussion the Prime Minister gave the deputation the guarantees above mentioned. The drop balance which was left over from June 30th last was transferred by the Auditor General to the general revenue. A special Minute of Council had now been passed, and the Board of Pensions had been notified, and the amounts should be ready for payment during the first week of December.

The G.W.V.A. deputation were greatly interested in the intimation by Sir Richard that he had under consideration in connection with the Veterans a policy of finding employment, which would be submitted to the Executive at an early date. On being asked if this policy would include veterans in the outports, the Prime Minister said it included the whole country. He also informed the G.W.V.A. deputation that he would have a further conference with them as soon as the employment scheme matured.

PECULIAR CIRCLE AROUND THE MOON

Those who are in the habit of sky-gazing would have seen a rather unusual night last night. Around the moon, which was full and bright, was a circle of four colors or rings. The outer ring was a faint red, then a circle of green, then brown and inside of that white, the moon itself being up the centre.

POPPY DAY SUCCESS

Last evening the sum of $1,016 was passed in to the G.W.V.A. by Mrs. W. B. Fraser as a result of the day's sale of poppies. It is understood that there are a few more boxes to come in and all are satisfied with the result of the day's work.

Mr. J. P. Burke, Bell Island, was in town yesterday.

ARMISTICE NIGHT CELEBRATION

The Great War Veterans' Association celebrated Armistice night by a dance in the C. C. C. Hall at 8 o'clock. His Excellency the Governor presented the prizes won at the G.W.V.A. Sports during the summer and congratulated the winners on their excellent showings. He referred to the sale of Poppies during the day and announced that the sum of $1016, 00 had been collected in the city during the day and some more was yet to come. He expressed the thanks of the Association to Mrs. W. B. Fraser and her co-workers for their indefatigable efforts in this and other projects connected with the G.W.V.A. At the conclusion of His Excellency's speech cheers were heartily given. Then began the dance.

A very large gathering of spectators was present. The enjoyment continued until an early hour this morning, when the tired, but happy crowd dispersed each and all voting the G.W.V.A. annual dance as "Better than the Best."

Captain Joseph Bishop of Western Bay, met with a serious accident on Wednesday evening last when proceeding down Hickman's wharf, he fell through an opening and broke his arm. He was picked up by some friends, and medical aid being called, was taken to Hospital where his injured limb was set, and it will be some time before he will be able to leave the Institution. Captain Bishop is well known in the city, and his many friends regret to learn of the unfortunate occurrence.

SAYS IT WAS AGONY TO STRAIGHTEN UP

Monoton Man Had to Walk All Bent Over But Is Now Well and Active.

"Nobody to look at me now would think I had ever known a sick day in my life and I feel as fine as a fiddle too," said Lea Poirier, 137 Wesley St., Moncton, N.B.
"For six years my stomach had been causing all kinds of trouble. My back was weak and at times hurt me so I had to walk all bent over, as it was just agony for me to try to straighten up.
"Tanlac has made a clean sweep of all my troubles and I'm like a new man. I have the appetite of a farm-hand and nothing I eat ever hurts me. The pain has gone out of my back and I can walk as well and am as active as I ever was in my life. I firmly believe Tanlac is the best medicine ever made."
Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.
